

Gundog Breeds Association of Scotland Championship Show Saturday 12th November 2011

I would like to thank the committee for their kind invitation to judge at this show, and hope they were as pleased with the number of entries as I was. The hospitality from the Society is second to none and I thoroughly enjoyed the pre-show evening get together, where respective judges had a chance to mingle and relax before a busy days judging. I was pleased with my overall entry and was certainly impressed since my last judging appointment that mouths had improved. I only had a couple of bad mouths. However, what is more noticeable is the size of the dogs teeth. I had to struggle on some exhibits to look at the teeth as they were so small. Fronts have some way to go to get back to the correct breed standard as we are still seeing the upright forearm that has become the fashion, which results in upright shoulders, and in turn means the front action is impeded and cannot reach forward showing off the Pointers true low, long stride. Although we had a reasonable sized ring, I much prefer to judge outside as exhibits do perform much better. I was somewhat concerned about the rear action of some dogs I have admired from afar, they did not use the hind action to advantage and looked like they couldn't use their quarters correctly. It is well known that I like exhibits to be well muscled and fit as the breed dictates as Pointers are the epitome of fitness when exercised correctly. However, I still found some exhibits rather fat and soft, which is a shame as it spoils the breed. I'm glad to say my winners were all fit and muscled. I had some heart-breaking decisions to make when deciding on placings, which is a good thing as this surely meant that I was presented with good exhibits and on another day in another venue, I'm sure places would change. However, on the day I had to make my choices and each class was applauded well, which, as one exhibitor said to me afterwards, is a very nice thing to hear, as we, unfortunately, have not been hearing much cheering from the ringside lately. My major winners were cheered loudly both in the breed ring and the big ring, where they did not disappoint by being shortlisted in the finals. It may sound strange, but to see exhibitors weep with delight truly is a joy to behold, as it made me feel that they still get that emotional feeling when being handed the CC.

My Dog CC was an outstanding specimen, being 9 years old, he certainly showed the youngsters how to do it in style. Moving with precision and drive, holding his topline on the move. It's a joy to go over this dog, his shoulder placement is spot on. Head properties are correct and he has a masculine air about him. A well muscled specimen, he deserved his third CC, to much applause. From the veteran right down to the puppy, you could not get any further, but this is where I awarded my RCC. His outline and head carriage were very pleasing and he certainly had that air about him that will attract attention when he matures. Onto bitches, where I had wonderful classes, having to make some heart breaking choices. If I could have had more CC's then four bitches would have gone home with one!! I had to really work them out for my final placings. I thought my veteran was a wonderful specimen and on the move she excelled, her profile is stunning and I was pleased to go over her, as we do not have many bitches of that quality and history behind their pedigree. However, on the day I really was spoilt for choice and gave top honours to a youngster I have not come across before. Her handler made sure she got every co-operation out of her by being at one together on the move. When standing she is a picture and does not disappoint on going over her. In the big ring she went with enthusiasm and drive after a long and tiring day and I was not disappointed in her performance. It was a hard decision to make between the veteran and puppy for RCC, but once again, I awarded it to the puppy. Her outline is perfect and when moving she holds her topline strong and level. Her shoulder construction is extremely pleasing and she uses her front extension and rear drive to manoeuvre correctly.
